Invariably it is noticed that the Registry does not make computation of delay in filing the petition, appeal, revision. The calculation made by the applicant in application for condonation of delay is placed before the Court without verifying the same on the basis of records produced before the Registry. The Registry is directed to compute the delay, in addition, on the basis of records produced before it and submit the computation sheet of delay in filing the petition, appeal, revision before the Court. The Registry is not entitled to examine the reasons for condonation of delay and also of computation made by the applicant in the application. The Registry is obliged to accept the application for condonation of delay whenever it is made along with the petition, appeal, revision filed beyond the period of limitation. Accordingly, the Registry is directed to calculate the
