UPON hearing the counsel the Court made the following
O R D E R

The ground on which the special leave petitions was entertained is that the High Court could not have conferred jurisdiction on the Chief Judicial Magistrate in respect of an issue, which the law did not permit him to adjudicate upon.

This Court has been informed that by virtue of subsequent developments the respondent No. 1 has been released on bail and is now taking care of the minor child. In view of these later facts, this Court is of the opinion that this is not an appropriate case for entertaining the special leave petitions.

The arguments of the petitioner with respect to jurisdiction however have merit.

Learned counsel for the petitioner does not press the special leave petitions, these are accordingly dismissed as infructuous.
